

Birmingham Hip Resurfacing (BHR)

The Birmingham Hip Resurfacing procedure helps young, active men with arthritis hip pain to restore their active lifestyles and keep more of their original bone.

The procedure is done under general or regional anaesthesia. A cut is made in the side of the leg, and the tendons of the muscles around the hip are carefully cut to expose the hip joint, which is dislocated. The arthritic joint and a thin layer of bone are removed and replaced with a metal 'ball and socket' and the tendons are re-paired. Most people can walk with crutches the same day, and can usually go home after a few days. It is safe to operate both hips in one procedure.
