Monitored Anaesthesia Care (MAC) is a type of anaesthesia technique used during medical procedures. It involves the administration of sedative medications and local anaesthesia to keep you comfortable and relaxed. Depending on the level of sedation and surgical treatment, you may or may not be aware of your surroundings during the procedure.

MAC is carried out by an anaesthetist who administers the medication and monitors the whole procedure. It allows for a safer and more comfortable experience for certain procedures, while still providing adequate pain control.
